TCP flow control

▸ Receiver controls sender, so the sender won't overflow the receiver's buffer by sending too fast

▸ Receiver advertises buffer space by including a rwnd value in the header

▸ Sender limits the amount of un-acked data to receiver's rwnd value to application process

RcvBuffer

buffered data

rwnd

free buffer space

TCP segment payloads

receiver-side buffering